AMENHOTEP II — RESTORED

Since the publication of the head of King Amenhotep II in the Museum Bulletin (February, 1954, pp. 11-20) and the identification of its torso in Paris, the Louvre has courteously sent to Boston a plaster cast of the body. This has made it possible to combine with it a plaster cast of the head in the Museum's collection which is now on exhibition in Gallery E5, Case 1, side by side with the original head. The young king offering two jars of wine is probably represented in a ceremony taking place at the foundation of a new temple.
